THE COURSE

Law enforcement agencies around the state struggle to provide the training and resources to officers to allow for a consistent and effective response to victims of family violence and sexual assault. Family violence and sexual assault issues are becoming more common in Texas peace officers' day-to-day duties. The amount of training peace officers receive to investigate these crimes is disproportionate to the number of times officers are called to deal with these issues.

The Sexual Assault and Family Violence Investigator's Course – or SAFVIC (TCLEOSE Course 3264) is designed to provide law enforcement officers around the state with the tools they need to effectively investigate and prevent sexual assault and family violence. The SAFVIC is funded by a grant from the Criminal Justice Division of the Governor's Office and the National Violence Against Women Office. This program is administered by the Texas Municipal Police Association (TMPA) with input from a statewide steering committee comprised of representatives from law enforcement, prosecution and victim services.

The SAFVIC consists of a comprehensive curriculum covering crucial aspects related to law enforcement's response to these crimes, as well as the creation and use of community-based resources to assist law enforcement's efforts. The program will utilize a network of certified instructors to deliver training on a local basis, thus enabling more officers to take part in this very important training.

Officers attending and successfully completing the SAFVIC will receive 24 hours TCLEOSE credit. This course satisfies the requirements for a basic license holder regarding family violence, sexual assault, and stalking. In addition, this course offers an additional certificate of accomplishment and training called a SIPC - Special Investigator Certificate Application.
