OVERVIEW

Section 1. – Concept

- a) The overall objective behind the formulation of Standard Operating Guidelines for the SNCA is to provide a simplified and direct method for utilizing the total response capabilities of the group for the benefit of a single member or group during an emergency. Consideration of the interdependence of participating agencies/entities suggest the desirability of having a procedure that provides the means to provide mutual aid in almost any type of emergency likely to involve a member agency/entity.

- b) The SNCA was organized and directed along very informal lines. It was felt by the founders that to burden the SNCA with formal written agreements would preclude the element of flexibility so essential during times of an emergency. The SNCA continues to function along these lines with the complete support of Executive Management of the member agencies/entities. This Operational Procedure is not intended to supplant the original concepts, but rather to provide clear-cut guidelines and procedures for member agencies/entities in protecting facilities and communities during times of an emergency.

- c) The SNCA is a multi-agency/entity mutual aid organization prepared to provide direct assistance to Natural, Technological, and Terrorism based hazards. Some examples of occurrences that the SNCA can provide assistance to are: floods, hurricanes, tornado's wild fires, winter storms, major fires, explosions, hazardous materials incidents, both fixed facility or transportation incidents, large scale utility failures, radiological incidents, rescues, and transportation accidents. Basically any event which could or directly affects public safety or property within the membership area.

- d) The SNCA additionally coordinates with other Mutual Aid Associations along the Texas Gulf Coast and Southwest Louisiana. It is the intent of this coordination to be able to summon additional assistance and resources to combat a large-scale emergency over a large geographical area, without affecting local response capability to other on-going emergencies.

- e) State law and Regional Mutual Aid Agreement (MAA) provide state, local and county governments authority to share resources.

- f) The SNCA is in a position to provide a multi-agency coordination support role to Texas Disaster District 15 as a result of day-to-day membership relationships and resource database.

- g) The following are specific operational procedures and requirements for SNCA members requesting assistance or responding to a request for assistance.
